African business and legal developments and opportunities during and after the Covid-19 crisis

Presented by Pieter Steyn, Director of Werksmans and Chairman of LEX Africa

The Covid-19 crisis has had serious consequences in Africa ranging from healthcare challenges to serious economic and trade consequences including the collapse of the tourism sector and the need for several African countries to seek international funding and debt relief from their international creditors including China. Several competition and consumer protection authorities have been vigilant in exercising their powers against excessive pricing and other abuses. The implementation of the African Continental Free Trade Area has been affected. However with challenges come opportunities including in the healthcare, pharmaceutical, logistics, online retail, ICT and fintech sectors. Data protection laws are an increasingly important focus. Important infrastructure projects like the Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam are continuing. Africa's fundamentals have not changed and once the crisis passes, its potential and opportunities for both local and foreign investors will remain. China will remain a vital trade and investment partner and its Belt and Road Initiative will provide more opportunities for closer cooperation and development. The African legal, regulatory and business environment will continue to develop based on the lessons learned from the crisis.
